introduction

When we speak of reality we are usually forced to speak of truth. This is where a yearbook comes in. A yearbook is supposed to give a true account of a year in school. We have undertaken to put together this account and present it in the light of truth. It is a partially factual, partially abstract, but mostly esoteric representation of a very real situation. Thus we do not expect outsiders to understand all or sympathize with all that is here.

The theme of our story is the importance of the individual. Our point is contrasted into focus by the words of a modern philosopher who says: "If we are like everyone else, if we have no feelings or thoughts which make us different, if we conform in the custom, dress, ideas, to the pattern of the group, then we are saved--saved from the frightening experience of aloneness."

If you are "saved" then you have never really become the individual we are looking for in this story. We shall not concern ourselves with the whims of the gang or class, but rather with the struggle of the individual in his search for truth.

There are many factors involved in this struggle which will either help or hinder the individual. For that reason we have divided our story into four main elements with psychological-sociological sounding names--ENVIRONMENT, MOTIVATION, STATUS, and ESCAPE.

When he arrives a Loyola the individual is confronted by an entirely new environment. This will be his physical means to truth. The structures within which he sits and learns will shape his world from the outside. The individual realizes that he can do nothing to change this environment so he adjusts. The non-physical side of his means to truth is his exposure to the Jesuit system of "truth-getting" the relationships with his fellow students and the awakened awareness of the omnipresent Redeemer.

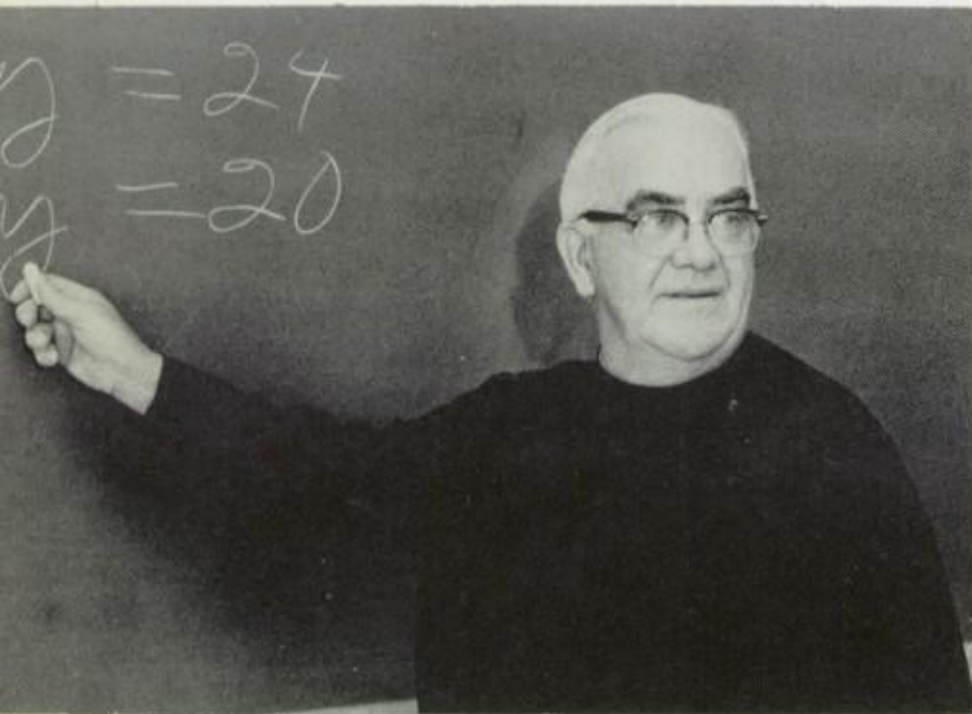

While adjusting, the individual may wonder why he came; and the Jesuit would answer, "You had motivation." Motivated he must have been and motivated he is--toward some vague goal, by some half dream, that day by day becomes a reality. These vague goals, hazy dreams of the outside, of the individual-rule world, are different for each, but felt by all. They shape his world from the inside. They give him perspective, drive and moral support. They determine whether he will be an engineer or doctor, an activity man or scholar.

But once he is here the individual finds it necessary to get away--to escape. To slip from under the pressure, the frustration, the squeak of the slide rule, the smell of the chemistry lab--to get away--becomes a goal and a dream too.

But there is nothing wrong with escaping. For the individual there are many exits for escape: football games, dances, and gym nights. He can drink coke or play cards in the lounge or he can just sleep. Yet he is always aware that he must return. In fact, even while escaping, he notices that he is still here.

Only his status changes. From a wide-eyed freshman, he is transformed to a graduating senior religiously counting the days. Finally, the count is zero, he walks across the wide stage, receives his passport to the outside, goes through the doors, and is gone.

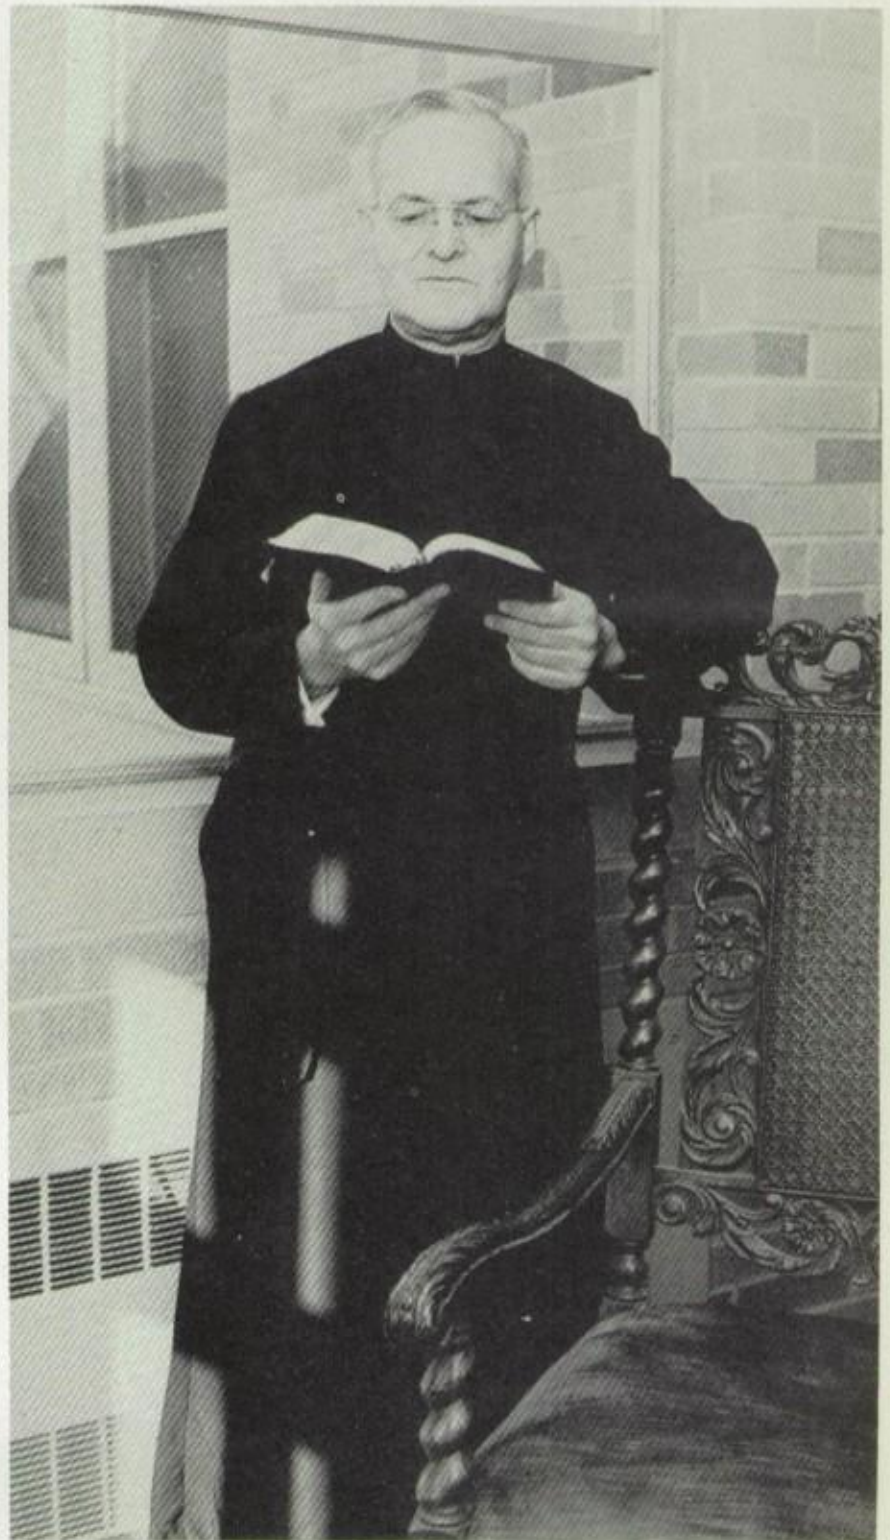

But there are always those who are left behind. The faces change from year to year, but the way of life remains markedly unchanged. They will write another story.

Fr. Powers—Fifty years a Jesuit.

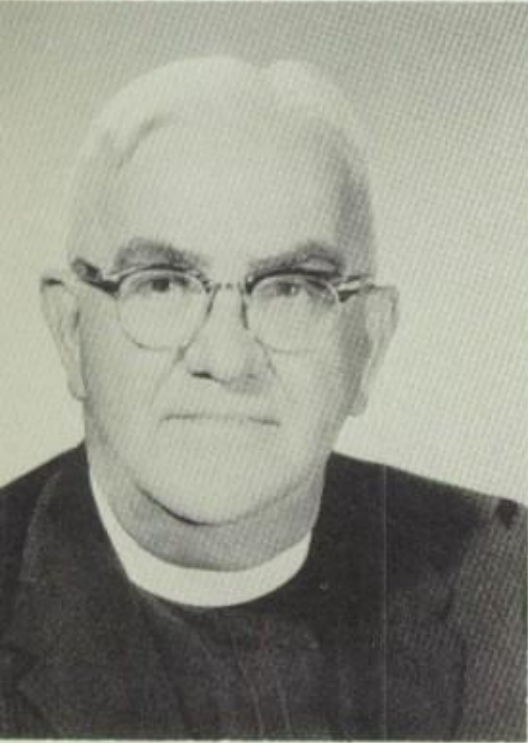

*Silver and gold I have none, but what
I have I give you.*

St. Luke

Fr. Crane—Twenty-five years at Loyola.

dedication

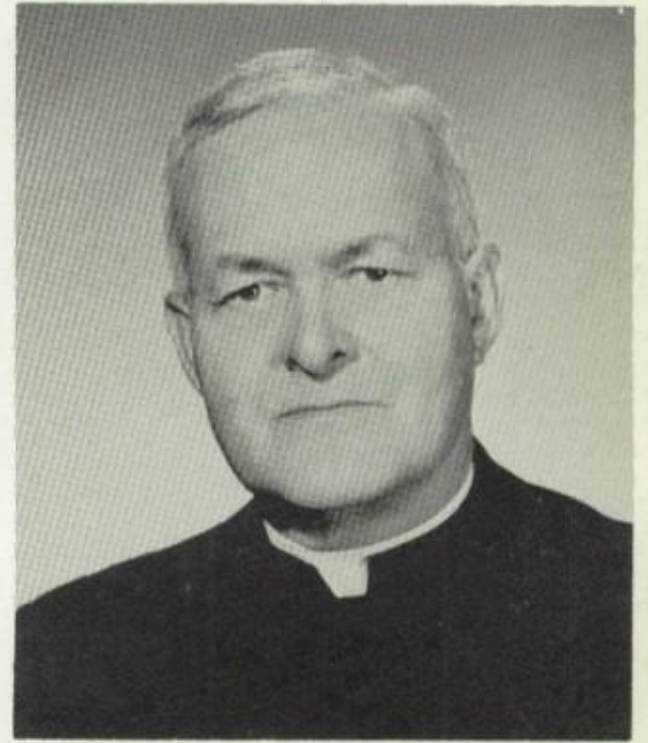

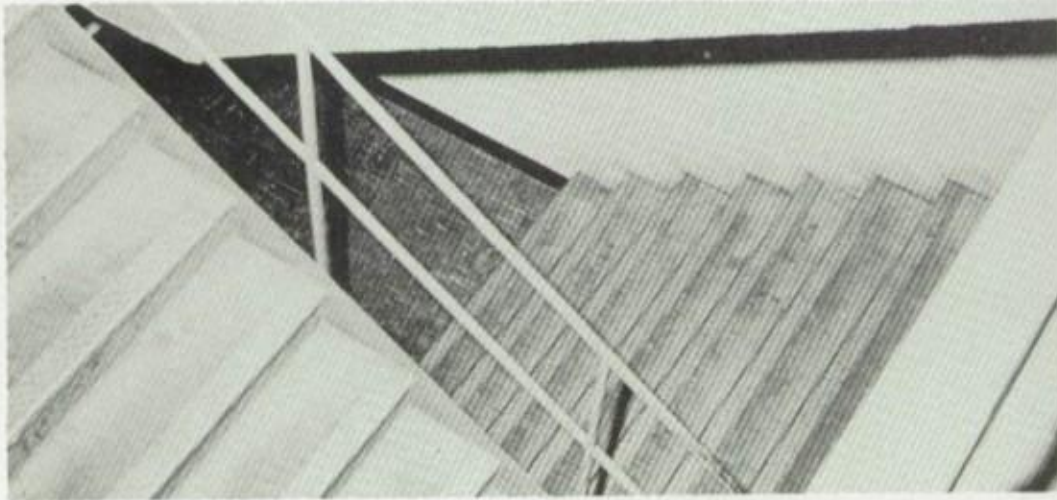

These are the workers.
These are the building-men
Tall and strong—but not tall and Strong like men who Build bridges or
Rivet steel girders or even
Dig ditches.
These are the men-builders.

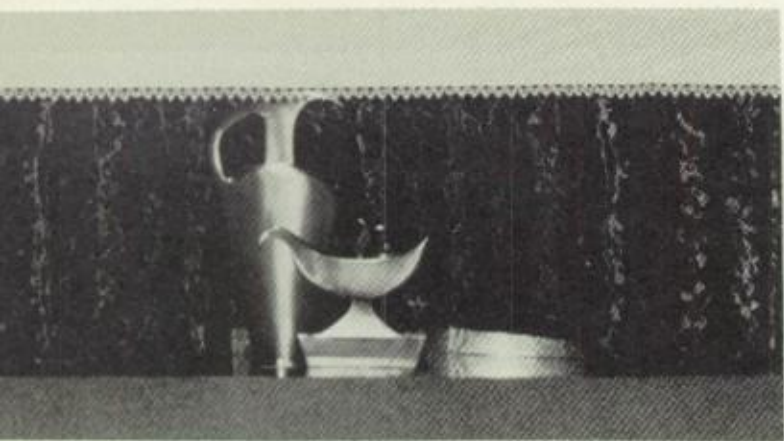

These are the creative men.
These are men who
Hammer
And tap and carve
And mold and finish
But not with lifeless
Stone nor breathless clay
Nor soulless paints.
These are the life-shapers.

These are the rich men
Giving—giving themselves.
These are the lighthouse-men
And the harvesters
And the shepherds
The path-finders
And the ageless men.

These are the teachers.

environment

O Lord I love the house in which you dwell, the tenting place of your glory.
The Mass

Campus

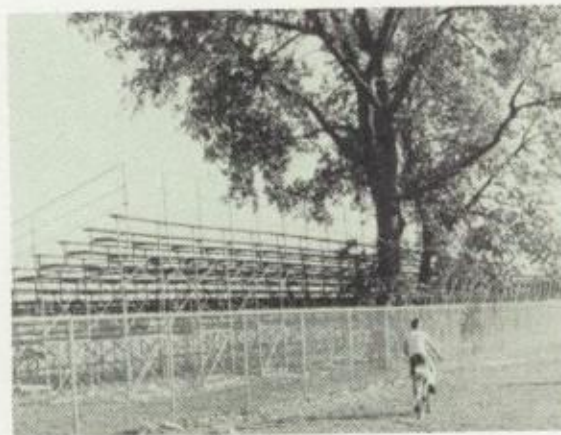

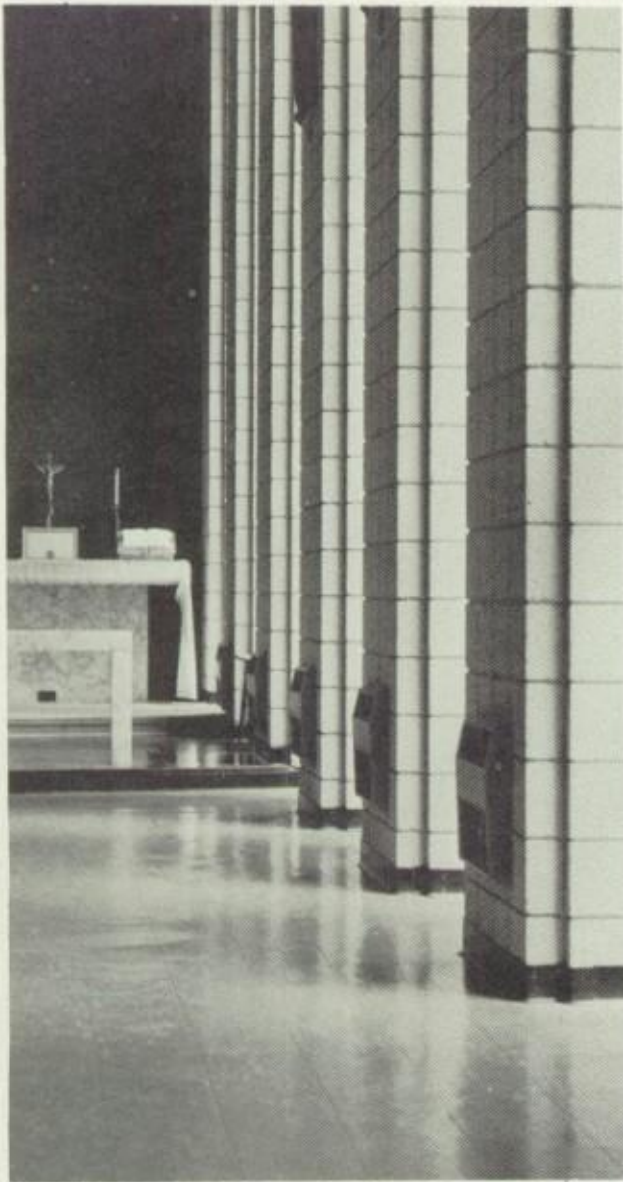

What is this thing we call a campus? Is it just the functional confluence of classrooms and gym and chapel, conveniently connected by long sleek corridors? Is it the shrubbery and grass and parking lot and trees and football field? Is this what we understand by campus or is there more? Can it include the four hundred-year-old traditions of the Jesuit educational system? It's nice to think that there is more than just a physical element which makes up this 25 acre site "west of Edens." How much of our day and week do we spend here? What is this mass of brick and steel? These windows and tiles and doors? Don't they have some meaning to us? We come here and find the same things the student in '57. We cannot change this environment. We must adjust.

How long did we have to wait for the new Physics labs? And isn't the construction still going on? Did you notice the two new additions to the chapel? One morning we see nothing but barren space on either side of the crucifix and the next day we find two statues "born" from the wall. We have witnessed the birth of many new elements each year. In this way we are unique. Yes, this is our campus. Not the traditional campus with lots of ivy and oak and nostalgia. We are a growing campus. Our roots are still taking hold.

*He who knows nothing, loves nothing.
He who can do nothing understands nothing.
He who understands nothing is worthless.
But he who understands
Also loves, notices, sees, . . .*

Civilization depends upon the flow of knowledge to wave upon wave of young people. If this flow is dammed we go back to the beginning and start all over again. Actually we are never really more than a generation away from total ignorance. Realizing this, we can not help but note the importance of a sound educational system. In this respect our faculty is more than well qualified.

They are the winds which buffet the waves to heaven's lofty heights. Even though we sometimes say that they don't understand us and that we don't understand them,—they really do—perhaps a little too well.

We wonder why we have to wear long sleeved shirts and ties and why we can't chew gum or use ink pens in school. Why do we take Latin for four years? And why do we have home rooms this year instead of the familiar 1A, 2B, etc? Why don't we have more study periods? Sometimes we get answers and we are satisfied. Sometimes we are not. Sometimes we don't get any answers at all. Well, that's the way it is and that's the way it's going to stay—after all, they are the educators.

REV. MICHAEL I. ENGLISH, S.J., President

from the president:

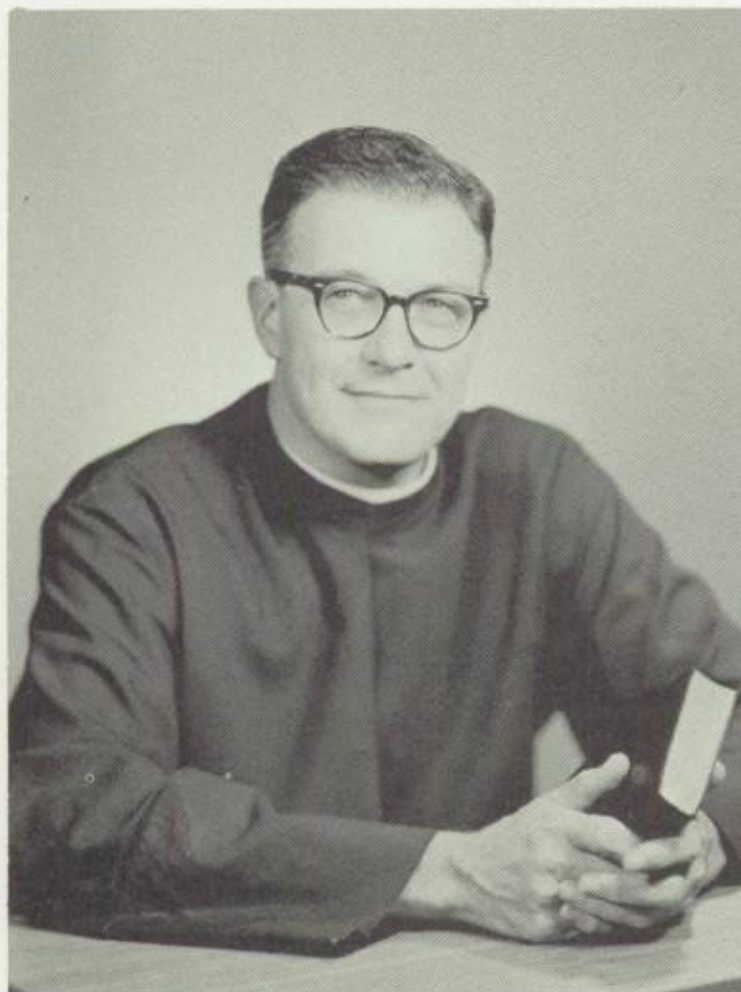

The national trend toward fallout shelters can make a final greeting seem uneventful. But crises of today evolved from human decisions made in past years. Would our world be different if these decisions had been more intelligent, more farsighted, more courageous, more unselfish? That it would be different and that the future can be different and can be affected profoundly by the education given our young men must be an eternal spur for our teachers and students. To you seniors the teachers and administrators of Loyola Academy gave the best that was in them. You responded splendidly in entering into courses that had never before been offered, in acquiring habits of study and self-discipline, in taking serious the life of the mind. You have witnessed the growth of our science laboratories, the expansion of classroom space, the development of a new and vigorous athletic program. You are aware that all these advantages came about through the continuous interest and sacrifices of your parents and of our devoted alumni whose ranks you join. The Academy is proud of its seniors of 1962 who invariably made a striking impression on visitors to the school.

Almost one-half of the peoples of the world live under tyranny. Our era may be likened to a vast beachhead upon which the tides of history have washed up all the multiple social problems and conflicts that have beset mankind since the dawn of time. This is the period of history to which you have fallen heir. You should face the future with gratefulness that God has destined you to live and to sacrifice at a time when the contribution of the individual can be so helpful to all.

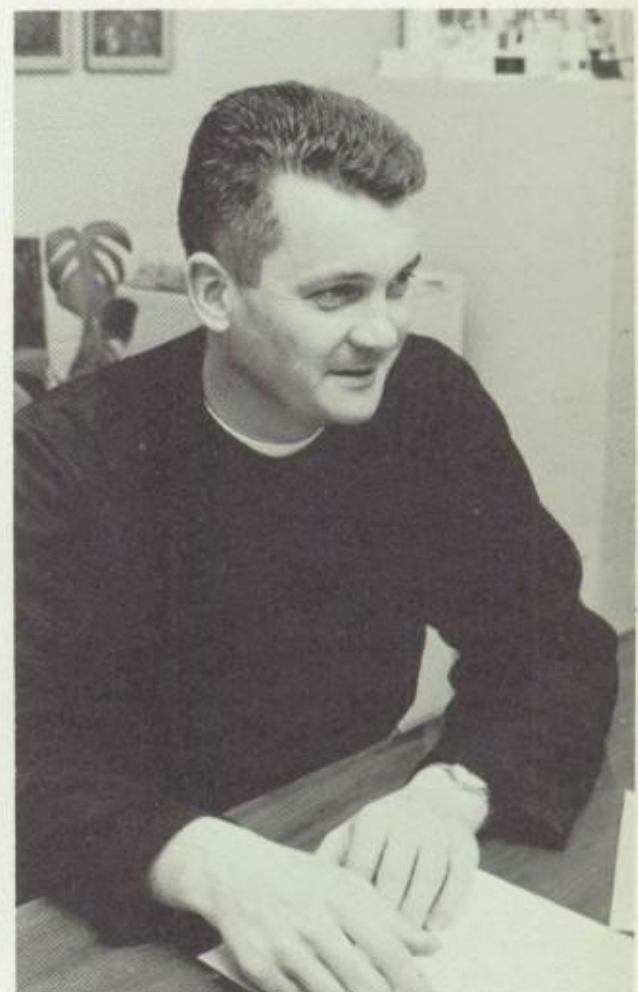

At Loyola our emphasis has been twofold--concern for your intellectual growth and constant opportunity to know the place of religion and virtue in the scale of human values. May the bonds of affection between you seniors and your Alma Mater grow more firm with the passing years!

status

*Teach us to care and not to care,
Teach us to sit still.*

Eliot

underclassmen

A quiet rule-breaking whisper: a mystified newcomer seeks out a friend to struggle with him through these first few days of a seemingly jungle-like existence. He knows that this friendship may not be a lasting one but for the time being he is satisfied knowing that this year or the next he will make lasting friendships.

His Status Quo will never last, for his mind develops, and seeing the dangers of a stagnant existence will not be satisfied with the sought-after. Status will come from caring and not caring, but most of all from just sitting still. It will result from desire, drive, and realization of the good and the bad for each individual. Some day he who endures will sit in the senior lounge and talk with this one or that one and be completely himself.

When the oh-so-long and oh-so-short years begin, the boy is of necessity, a boy. He is part of that grammar school mold—yet ready to prove himself to any who may be interested. When the sometimes difficult and sometimes easy years finally come to an end, the boy is no longer completely a boy, still part of the mold. Now a new mold stresses his forming values, his individuality, and his sense of personal existence.

The underclassman has something to look forward to and something to look back on.

Man is nothing else but what he makes of himself.
Sartre

seniors

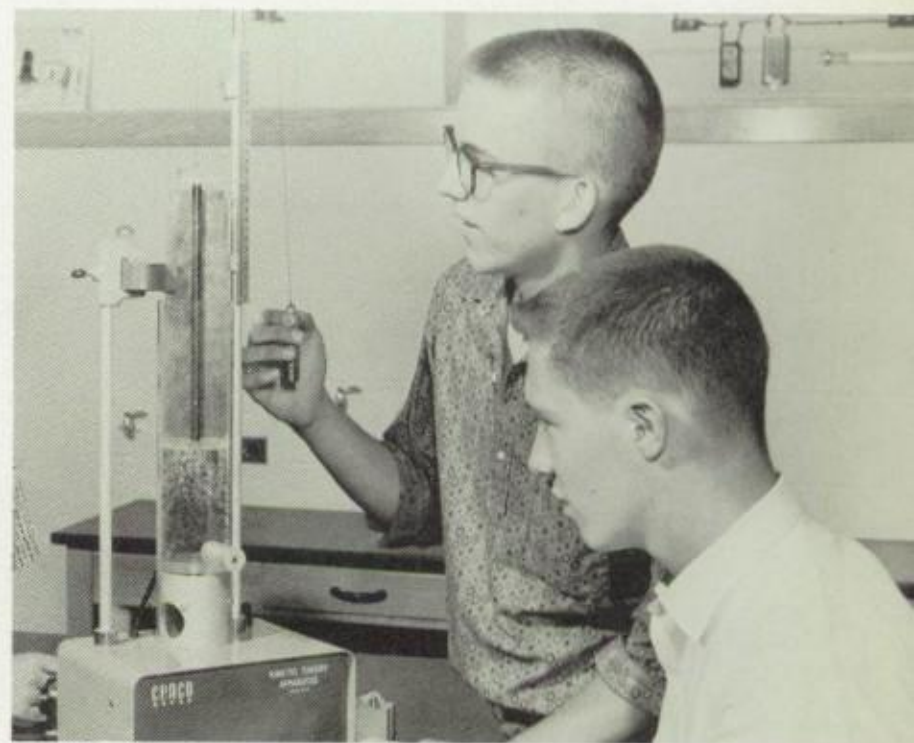

Four years—and what a change. The shy, awkward freshman has suddenly become a prince—an heir to the world. Sophisticated, blase, very often tired, and more than once he is quite bored with it all. But most of all—he is proud. Proud to be a senior.

What is a senior?

A senior is a collection of memories. His mind is flooded with them: the many nights he burned the midnight oil in a last minute attempt to finish an assigned term paper; the sting of the brisk October wind on his face as he sat intensely watching a football game behind one end of a hotdog; the casual cigarette and conversation enjoyed in the lounge after lunch; the athletic events; daily Mass, dances, sock hops, his teachers, car caravans, report cards, jugs—these are all part of his memories. Some are pleasant; some are not. But a senior remembers them all.

In quoting Sartre's words about man being "nothing more than he makes of himself" we mean that the knowledge he has absorbed will carry him, but only so far. The kind and wise advice he has heard will bear him, but it too will fall short. If the senior is to live in this world, he will live on what no one has given him but God and himself. He is the only one who can tear himself away from the comfortable cliques of conformity. He alone, and not his teachers or anyone else, can cry out against what is wrong and fight it. And only he can make himself a man.

One can not go home again.

activities

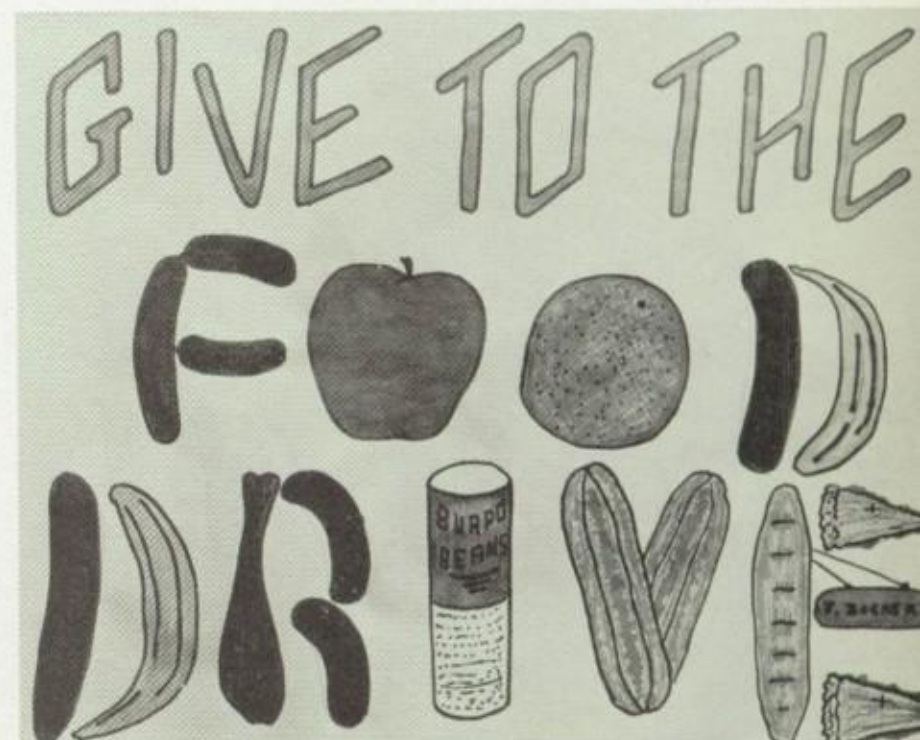

Activities are said to be the core of a school. They make an impersonal building pervaded with a bookish atmosphere, a very warm and personal place. They form school spirit; and they make the school a place to be proud of, a place to be cheered for.

But if the activities are so much to a school, they are much more to the student. First of all, and most important, they make a student belong. He becomes a part of a group—not just a pointless cog on a vast wheel, but an integral part of a vital action. Whether he is pounding a gavel in the debate room, or pounding a typewriter in the newspaper office the student is building his school—its reputation, its spirit. Secondly, the activities man is achieving. He builds himself, he gives himself, he sacrifices himself. He learns the art of victory well won or defeat gracefully accepted.

The student in an activity is part of a team. He works with it, grows with it, and—from it and out of the team he advances miles to becoming a man.

Leaving home early and returning late, his sphere goes out and out and out, like the ripples of a pebble in a puddle. Really, "he cannot go home again." At Loyola he has left something behind, a part of himself—and he has found something far greater.

rostrum

Speech has always been the most effective line of man's communication. Troy fell before one man's spoken logic; Rome expanded its boundaries while hearing the echoes from the senate; the word of God was spread by the inspired preachings of twelve men. The forging of war, the molding of peace are the result of the ability to speak, to persuade, to convince.

It is this tradition that makes Loyola's Rostrum, the debating society, much more than an extra-curricular activity. The Rostrum is a training ground, and the lessons learned there are as important as those repeated in Algebra or English class. Debating gives the student force in logic, the ability to think on his feet, to recall facts, and use them effectively. Forensics, extemporaneous speaking, oratorical declamation, and student congresses all play vital parts in building the whole Christian man.

This year, the topic of debate has been, "Resolved: That the federal government should equalize educational opportunity by means of grants to the states for public, elementary, and secondary education." Out of the reams of file cards, the stacks of reference books, and the hours of practice have come many successes for the Rostrum. Under the headship of Messrs. Gschwend, S.J., and Traub, S.J., the debaters have won numerous awards, highest among them being the firstplace trophy from the Midwest Forensic League. The Rostrum has done equally well in the student congresses and speech tournaments throughout the year.

But trophies and medals are only superficial. The real value of the Rostrum lies in the experience it gives in teaching young men to speak clearly and intelligently.

A voice in speech gives sound to logic, allowing an idea the world in which to expand.

The patron of the Sodality is a Queen; her court is an organization of hard-working men. A Sodalist leads a way of life that is not cut out for all. His day begins with the "Morning Offering," and before he retires, he has offered much—both spiritually and scholastically to God. He must say the rosary, attend the Sacrifice of the Mass, receive Christ's Body, meditate for fifteen minutes, and take time for a brief "check up" before retiring. Along with this he has his normal activities as a student to keep him busy. The Sodalist's work does not end with personal goals. He joins others for weekly meetings, periodic inter-school Sodality days, days of recollection, and a three day closed retreat in December.

Sodalist on retreat at Villa Redeemer.

The Sodality enhances the Christian reputation of Loyola by encouraging the performance of the corporal works of mercy. Members distribute food and clothes to Chicago's needy. They manage "Derby Day" at Christmas time to help build hospitals and churches in foreign lands. Christmas and Easter are times for parties; so the Sodality joins the Little Sisters of the Poor in party-giving for the old folks. Sometimes the Sodalist's apostolate is his own social self-education when he meets in small groups with Negroes to discuss the racial problem under the direction of Friendship House. Finally the Sodalist's contribution to Mardi Gras is the Bal Masque—the social fête of the winter season which is a Sodality project well known to all Loyolans.

prep

Bob Wozniak, Editor-in-chief.

George Sullivan, Copy Editor

Most of the student body may think that the Prep is a school newspaper: It isn't. Well, then what is it? If it isn't a newspaper, what could it be? It's a newsmagazine. It combines the good qualities of both the ordinary newspaper with the added attribute of the magazine. From the former it gets the up-to-date news, and from the latter come its many photographs and feature columns.

If it isn't an ordinary newspaper, what is the Prep's purpose? To cover athletic events? To admonish students in editorials? To focus a spotlight on senior leaders? Yes and no. the Prep's purpose is to cover all aspects of Loyola Academy life—academic, social, religious, and athletic. These different views on campus life make our newsmagazine more interesting and thus easier to read. In every issue we have printed many and different articles so as to try to please and reach every Loyolan.

Now that we know what the Prep is and what its purpose is, we can learn some of its intricacies: What is its frequency of publication? How up-to-date is it? To answer the first, it is printed every month. (Although this is not as often as in previous years, we have tried to put the extra time to good use by making the Prep as nearly as perfect as possible.) As for how recent the news is that it covers, we have been able to cover events up to three days of the date on which we come out.

Has the Prep changed any this year, besides the price? Definitely. We have tried to concentrate featuring good editorials—both by giving students an opportunity to express themselves and by writing on behalf of the entire student body on topics of current interest. This year we have incorporated a column for sophomore news, a column on jazz, and a rejuvenated Campus Personalities' column.

Mike Barton, Sports Editor.

Mr. Burke, S.J.

A set goal for this year's cover has been to combine artistic excellence with coverage of current events. We have featured shots of our chapel statues, Carson's Christmas Crib, both were new this year and very artistic.

Is there anything that the Prep is especially proud of? And if so, what? Well, we take great pride in our photography. In fact, our photos are considered our finest feature. They are able to tell a story in themselves—a sort of photo-journalism.

This year we have increased our staff in order to distribute the work among many. All the staff is under direct control of the editor-in-chief. It is his task to see that appointed work is handed in promptly, put in the correct place, receives correction, rewriting, and finally gets to the publisher on time. His is the most difficult, but after publication, the most rewarding work.

Well, another year has gone by and we have tried to record it faithfully and accurately on these pages. It was a big job. Even after checking and rechecking we suspect there may be an error here and there. We enjoyed our work and we feel that we not only have given an accurate representation of our school, but also in some way or other we have manifested ourselves.

We realized that most of you look at this as just another yearbook. But, like every staff, we were faced with the problem of putting out not just another annual but rather trying to put it out in a different, yet appealing way. We were influenced by many elements. Among them were men like Sartre and Salinger, Picasso and Miles Davis, Hemingway and Karsh. We like to think that we have something in common with them. They are artists. They look at life for what it really is. Then, in their own open-minded and interesting way, these artists re-create life in an artistic form. We too hope that we will be recognized as artists even though the scale may have to be adjusted. We have taken the private world at 1100 N. Laramie, worked it over, and have given it back to our fellow students as public record of the year 1962

The editor confronted the photographers with an entirely new approach. The staff totally revised the format following the example of the best in modern advertising. The writers of the Year wrote differently. They tried new methods and came up with a more personal approach in telling our story. These men are real artists.

Many were the times when all of us desponded in our approach: but with a little push and encouragement from our moderator, we endured the confusion and deadlines to the end.

We all enjoyed working on this book and feel that the experience we have gained is immeasurable. Maybe we look at life differently than most people. We worked together toward a common goal—creating. Maybe we were somewhat radical and esoteric in our creativeness. In our endeavor to be alive to new writing trends, we risked casualties.

In a way, we want to thank you for letting us do this story. We hope you like it.

 Follow the deer? Follow the Christ, the King—
 Live pure, speak true, right wrong, follow the King—
 Else, wherefore born."

With this insight Tennyson envisioned true knighthood—the traditional formula for true manhood. It is in this tradition that the Men of the Sacred Heart was founded at Loyola. It is in keeping with this tradition that the Men of the Sacred Heart have prospered and have energized in daily living the code of following Christ.

Devotion to the Person of Christ is the center of the club. About the center revolve the practices of the Apostleship of Prayer—the Morning Offering, Mass, Holy Communion of Reparation to the King, and the Rosary. From the center stem the various apostolates derived from the words of the King, "Go and do likewise." Set goals, meetings, activities: these help to unite and direct a body of men. But devotion to Christ and His Sacred Heart give these men an objective far more important—apostleship!

When we are members of a club here in school we know that we belong, that we fit in. There is a certain security in knowing that someone cares, that we are a part. How more fortunate are we than the fellow whose existence is unknown to anyone but himself. G. B. Shaw speaks wisely and we know what he means for we have experienced not only being completely ignored but we have also ignored others.

Why do we gather in clubs? To promote school spirit? To put on one-act plays? To paint posters? Maybe we are just lonely. Maybe we want someone to care. It really doesn't matter then what club we join, does it? No, the important thing is that we belong, that we work with others and for others. The club for each of us is the one in which we can be accepted for what we are and what we can do.

It's a brief notice: "Next Wednesday each homeroom will have Torch Club nominations." Though seemingly insignificant, this is the pistol shot that officially starts the annual race for Loyola's most coveted status symbol. Strictly speaking, there is no campaign, although the perceptive eye may notice a besieged teacher listening to a litany of an aspirant's virtues, or perhaps one hears of one or two more parties than usual during the "season." But naturally only the most indiscreet would ever mention soliciting such an honorary status.

At the start of the race all are eligible and running but at the finish the hurdles have eliminated most of the prospects. The first hurdle is the nomination of six men per homeroom; the second is the faculty screening process. Finally, the last and highest confronts the survivors: their names are placed before the present club members who vote to bring the group to its full membership, about seventy-five.

Perhaps a new pledge might wonder if his highly hoped-for status was really worth the yearning when he gets his first, second . . . and tenth assignment in succession. "Take tickets." "Park cars." "Clean up after . . .

" These become familiar orders. There is no monetary reward for all this service and yet he responds willingly, in Torch Club tradition, for the privilege of wearing this symbol of status and achievement.

After the "race" is over, comes the traditional initiation dance in the library. It is an evening of camaraderie, dancing, awarding of pins, and recitation of the Torch Club pledge. The finale of the Club's year is the Tulip Trot in which the members ingenuity, charity, and energy is heavily taxed to present his fellow students the year's major social event.

When you are hardly awake at eight-thirty in the morning, the checker-board effect on the hall-junction wall can jolt you. Here every activity is advertised: The Canned Food Drive, Derby Day, record dances, a football or a basketball game—all are here in paint and paper.

It takes a lot to make a poster: a need, an idea, a picture, a caption and Mr. Manser to unlock the paint cabinet. In the end the effort is rewarding. There at the junction hangs a masterpiece communicating with all Loyolans, satisfying the artist, and supporting our latest event.

The sound of teen-aged boys and girls enjoying themselves at a club-sponsored student dance is a far cry from the sound of a signal coming through on a receiving set. But the Radio Club takes both in stride and adds another successful year to its record at the Academy. The club's own station, WA9DNO, is just another of the many ways in which the club is a testing ground for those students who think of electronics as a possible career or as just an enjoyable hobby.

Mr. Gannon, S.J.

What is needed for a revival?—musically speaking? The ingredients this year were: an experienced and talented new director, quadrupled membership, and the support of the faculty and student body. Since moving to the new campus, music at Loyola has left much to be desired, but this year a sonorous resurgence took place.

The music makers like to think they brought joy and harmony to their audiences, among whom were the mothers at their Christmas Party, the old folks cared for by the Little Sisters of the Poor, and fellow Loyolans who filled Regina Auditorium for the dual-concert with the Regina girls.

The success of this year's club must also be partially attributed to its energetic officers: Mike Woll, Bob Besse, Jerry Wojtanowski, and Fred Klein.

Loyola's counterpart of the Kingston Trio, the Coachmen, appeared with the Club in all its concerts and, at times, accompanied the Club with their guitar strumming.

The stage, the audience, the spotlight, the applause, all have their place for us. Be it the Studebaker Theater, Regina, LA, or some other playhouse, the show goes on, and the audience waits and then watches.

The audience. There it is, formed of the parents, who drilled our lines; friends, who smile; and students—vulnerable, critical, appreciative.

Before them all we step. Before them all we act. Hams and would-be professionals, our madness knows no method. Here is our chance to be other than ourselves. Before them all we reap the fruits of the rehearsal, of the trial and error. Before them all we reap the thrills, the fun, the accomplishments, and the applause.

The end comes all too soon, with curtain call and praise. The curtain falls, but a memory never ends.

athletics

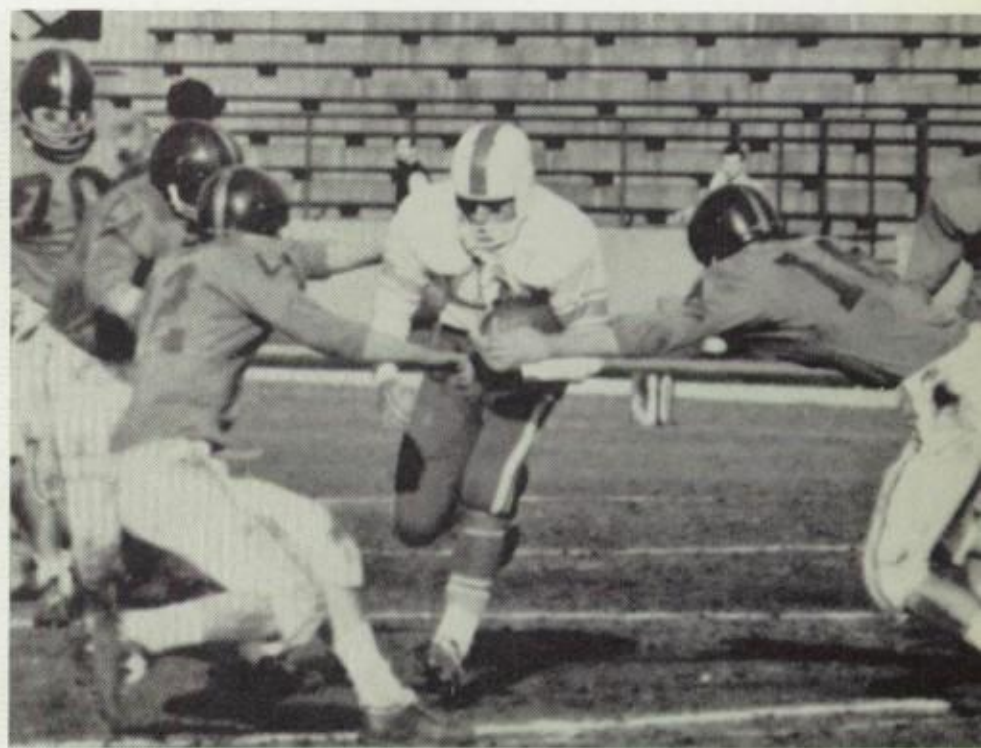

Man has always pitted himself against his fellow man in some form of athletic contest. Is it because there is something in man which drives him to compete, to strive, to excel, and finally to win? He usually expresses this urge in his chosen variety of mayhem. It presents to him an exciting challenge, a real test of courage, initiative, and stamina.

But if this is athletics, just what is an athlete? A boaster of an impressive array of flashy major-letters along with scrapbook of his newspaper clippings?

What are the requisites? A strong body, an alert mind, great enthusiasm, a fine sense of timing and co-ordination, and a high regard for teamwork? Does he stop at nothing to appease his classmates and friends who come to watch him and enjoy the vicarious satisfaction of killing the foe and wearing the victor's laurels?

One thing we know. Even though the odds are overwhelming, even though he is criticized, second-guessed, and his team is even "destroyed," he can not be defeated; an athlete will not quit.

MARQUETTE

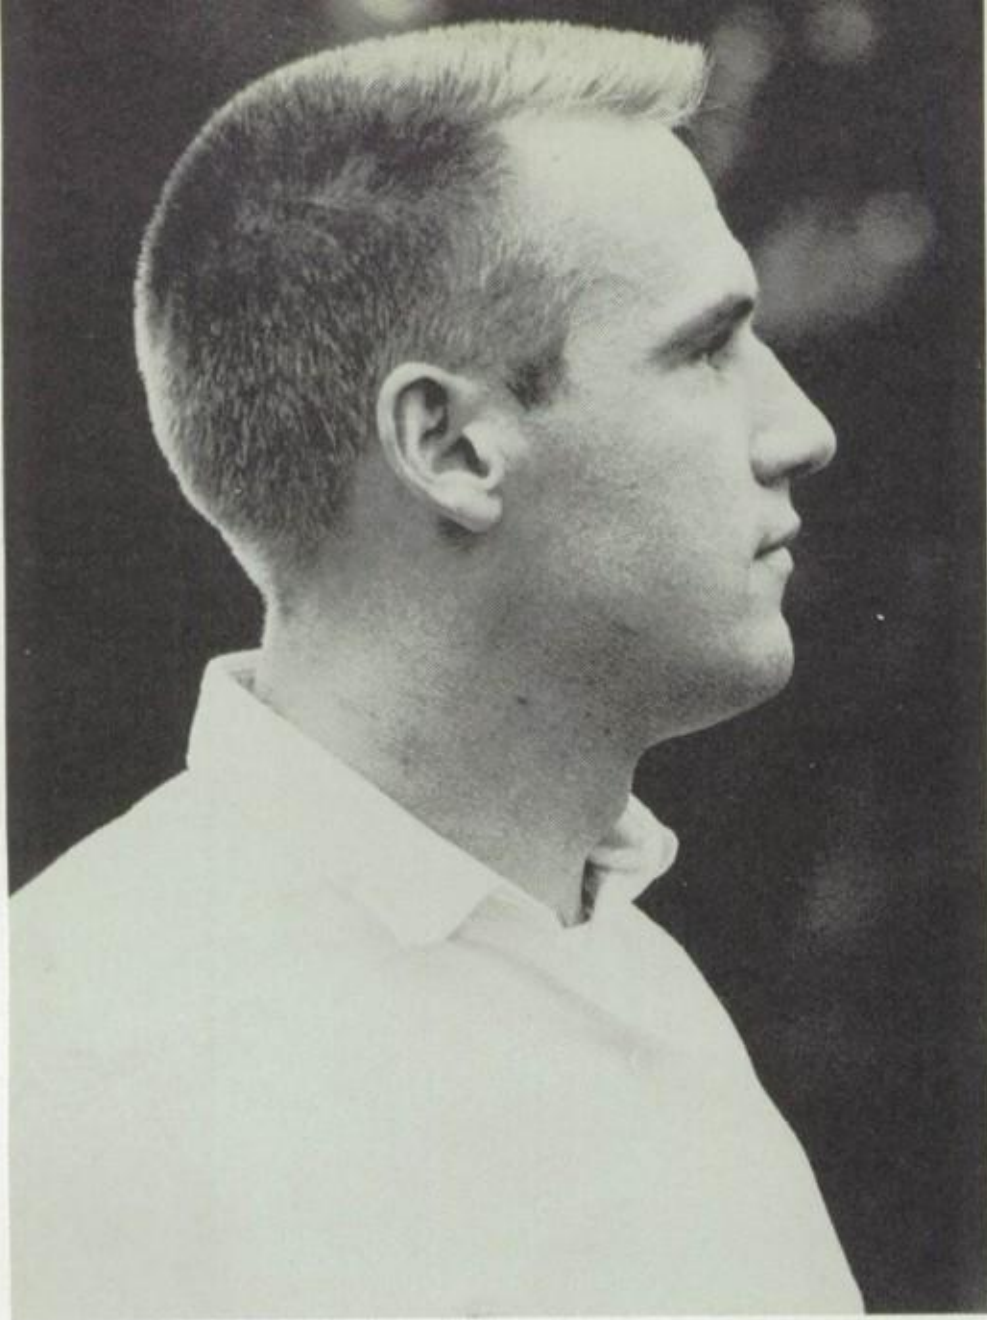

The Ramblers journeyed to Milwaukee to engage the state champions, Marquette's Hill Toppers. On a hot sweltering afternoon the LA men started slowly ending up on the short end of a 12-0 half-time score. An intent eleven returned prepared to do what they came for—and they did—with a Springgate to Woodward pass and a Meintzer conversion. Savard, having carried the gold 34 times, bulled over for another six. The hand of fate sealed the Hill Toppers doom: A bad pass from center sailed out of the end zone ending the scoring at 15-12. Upstart Loyola recorded its first '61 victory against a stunned Marquette.

IGNATIUS

The Jesuits' South Side segment trooped up to Sacks field, aided by spanking new uniforms, superior weight, and Mr. Lamont's "big brother." The wolves scored first, while LA failed to core in the half. The second half was highlighted by two colorful events, LA's first score and Halfback Woodward's pants-ripping. For the second successive game the opposing center was sympathetic to LA, and the ball sailed into the end zone tying the score at 8-8.

Springgate passes against Fenwick.

FENWICK

When one thinks of the Friars, he thinks of J. Jardine, city champs, and black. It was a dark, muddy, overcast day when LA visited Oak Park. The J. Jardine-men were ready, bolstered by a loud band, a full house, and a memory of last year's 22-6 victory. The L. Jardine-men were ready, with vaselined shoes, a crowd jammed into the smaller bleachers, and a slogan: "We hate black." The Friars slipped and slid over for the first score. The Ramblers, not to be outdone, sloshed back to record a 6-6 half-time score. The second half viewed the loss of D. Murphy, senior center. The Ramblers' defense held, slid, and finally held tight—final score 6-6. The Oak Parkers departed shocked, while Loyola left with visions of Soldiers Field in December.

ST. PHILLIPS

A happy home-coming crowd of Gaels welcomed the rolling Ramblers. All-city end Arunas Vasys flew over the marker with Fieberg securely hooked to his belt to register the Gaels only points. Loyola, rallied with 54 points. Markey, Savard, Corby, Rassas, Cole and Kading all contributed to the scoring kitty. Fisher went the distance to round out the score, but his tally was called back. The badly beaten Gaels wearily walked to the showers, while Loyola left in jubilee. It was a day when nothing could go wrong. But the Gaels could belittle any irate or boasting fan with a clipped comment: "We tried." That's all you ask.

Ramblers halt a Friar drive.

Pat Scully snatches a pass in the DePaul game.

DE PAUL

The Ramblers, perhaps a little cocky, failed to score in the first quarter. The second quarter opened with the loss of first string QB Bill Springgate. Jeff Markey retaliated by scoring LA's first TD. Captain Bob Barrett blocked an attempted punt which set up the second Markey tally. Two more scores: one on a 4 yard pass to Pat Scully, the other from fullback Dick Segerson while end Jerry Prior converted to close the scoring at 28-0. LA moved one more step closer to Soldiers Field.

Metzger goes up against Weber.

RESUME'

Of the four remaining games, two were won and two were lost. The first game was a surprise to everyone. The South Side has always been a power section that has never bowed to any "weak" north section team. It was under these pretenses that LA traveled down to one of the south's best: the Mendel Monarchs. Right from the beginning the Monarchs were in for a surprise. Corby went in on a 15 yard pass, Fieberg on a 15 yard sprint, and finally high-point-man Markey finished the work in the last quarter. The only mar on the slate was Andreatti's 101 yard TD sprint. Final: 22-6, a big step closer to the citadel on the Outer Drive.

It was a soggy day when the Gordon Tech Rams were the next slaughtered victims of LA. After a scoreless first quarter, Metzger broke the ice with a 25 yard screen-pass TD. Markey, having his best day, scored three times with bursts of 44, 40, and 3 yards. Finally Savard pushed a tally across from the 3, ending the scoring at 30-0. The Ramblers now felt that they had one foot on the emerald turf of "championship."

Weber's Red Horde were the last to play host to the undefeated Ramblers. At the prospects looked bright for LA, but after an intercepted Polk pass was returned for a tally, hopes dimmed. A lone spark in the dying embers was a long pass caught by Metzger out of the end zone. Final, 32-0—Weber's game.

The never-say-die LA-men next met Fenwick for a second-place berth. Seemingly dwarfed by huge Soldiers Field, the Ramblers could muster only six points to the Friars' 22.

Though hopes were destroyed, the Ramblers could not feel defeated concluding this, their best season in a decade and a half—five wins, two ties and two defeats.

Afternoon Sprints

A sweltering September morning, a brief announcement in the homerooms—this was the simple unglorified start of the '62 swimming season. The thought of the cool water in vivid contrast to the beating sun made all the members of the team anxious to get going. And "get going" they did.

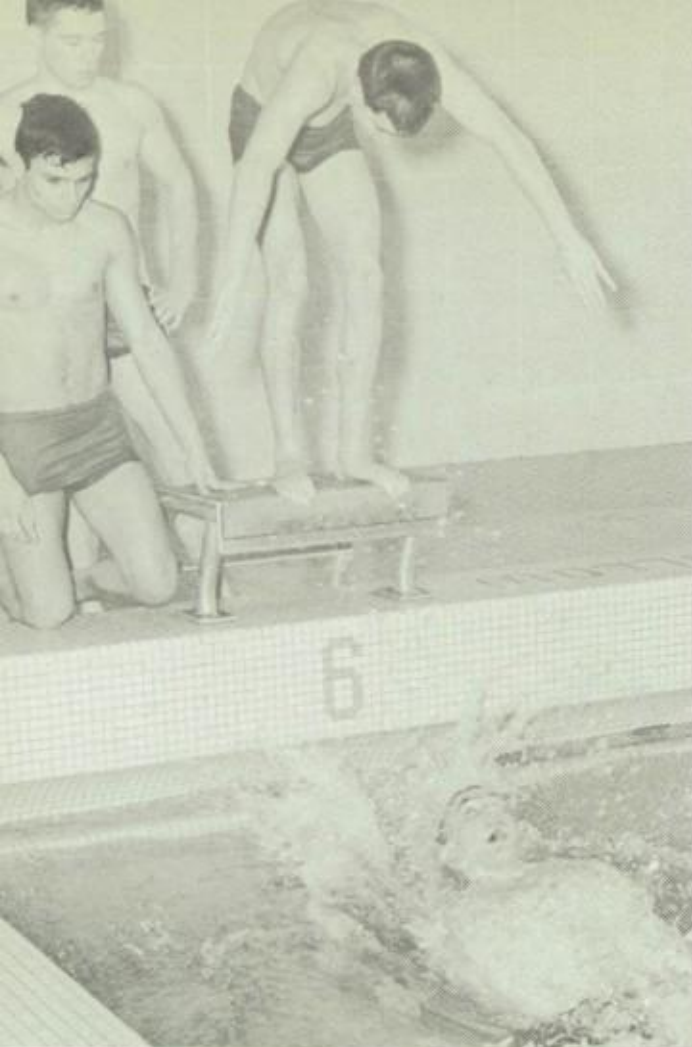

"Malachowski what are you doing?" Silence falls over the swimming area—"Gentlemen these are sprints, not completion exercises; sprint or get out." Although the recipient of Mr. Lamont's exhortations often changed, the subject matter was always the same—"work," "hard work."

The team enthusiastically responded to Mr. Lamont: as a result they have enjoyed a prosperous season. The prime factor responsible for the repeated success was depth. Captain Joe Griffin established an all-time Catholic League record in the one-hundred-yard backstroke. Seniors Pete Leech and Bob Malachowski set L.A. standards in the breast stroke and butterfly events. Holding up the laurels of the Junior class by setting records in the four-hundred-yard and two-hundred-yard freestyle events were Greg Flanagan and John Fegan. Backstroker Jim Daly personified the word "depth" by making himself one of the top point-scorers on the team. Freestylers Scott Kozlowski, Fran Cook, and Darro Angelini were consistent high scorers throughout the year. Prominent representatives from the Junior class were Juan Molina, John McCormick, and George Lamping.

The Junior Varsity team coached by Messers Touhy, S.J., and Fletcher, S.J., also had a top-ranking season. The highlight of their success occurred in the Catholic League Championships when their freestyle team of Mike and Scott Clark, Paul Dunn, and Tom Mulroy beat their Fenwick arch-rivals to a new Junior Catholic League record.

DE PAUL TOURNAMENT

For the second consecutive year Loyola copped first place in the annual De Paul Holiday Tournament. The Ramblers overcame such opposition as Fenwick (43-36), Brother Rice (66-60), and in the championship tilt, Leo (72-59). Only a tenacious defense effort on the part of Junior Paul Colleran and the dead-eye of Bub Elmore allowed the Ramblers berth in the semi-finals. Against Brother Rice, Jack Wambach proved size doesn't mean everything as the 6'2" forward snatched rebound after rebound. In the big one, Loyola jumped to a quick lead over the Lions and never surrendered as it rolled past the south-side foe 72-59. John Gorman came to life, scoring 13 field goals and 8 charity tosses for a total of 34 points. Wambach and Elmore were elected to the all-star squad.

FENWICK TOURNAMENT

The Fenwick Tournament again held a crown just out of reach for Loyola's Lights. For the second year in a row they fell victim in the final championship game, to the South Side power from St. Rita. The tournament opened with a 50-42 win over Leo's, then the next night the Lights toppled Mendal's five 53-49, but they themselves fell when they got to the top of the ladder to meet St. Rita. Final score: 51-54.

Following the traditional post-game prayer, Coach Sullivan broke the ominous silence: "You boys have nothing to be ashamed of." Though the words were true, and though they had played one of their best games of the season, it was hard to cover long faces and low spirits in accepting the second consecutive runner-up trophy—no one likes to be no. 2 man all the time!

LIGHTS

Third row: Joe Schwaba, Coach Gene Sullivan, Terry Kelly, Carl Gebuhr, Beezie O'Brien.

From the first Lights' dribble of the season, there were many who thought "they didn't have a chance." Even more held that opinion when it seemed that the only to measure in were last year's third stringers. But the Lights revolted! A sparky team under brilliant coaching coped the North Section trophy to prove the pessimists wrong. In the regular season they lost only to DePaul and Weber, a remarkable achievement, considering that only one starter from last year measured in for the new season. Captained by seniors Kelly and Gebuhr, the Lights fought for every inch of their gleaming trophy. With Garvey bringing the ball up court, Frankel and Conroy sinking their outside shots, Markey and Ferrara snapping up the rebounds and Nieman to do the blocking, the team charged roward with surprising power and speed.

The story was the opposite from the first Heavies' dribble of the season. Most people believed they "had it made" before the season opened. They needed leadership—provided by Co-captains Elmore and Wambach, and they needed incentive—provided only after the DePaul Tourney. Except for a loss to Leo, the Ramblers coasted in pre-season play. With Foreman and Gorman dunking in the tourney the incentive began to sparkle. From this point on they drove, dribbled, rebounded, shot and scored they way to an undefeated North-sectional crown. With Colleran marshalling the floor and O'Loughlin, Lyons and Handley providing the depth, the team came up to expectations.

The play-offs of '62 are a sad story for LA. The Lights fell to old foes from DePaul—never getting the chance to avenge themselves on St. Ritas in the pay-off. A bye and a sound drubbing of Fenwick set a promising stage for the Heavies to meet Gordon. Though they had been twice solidly defeated by LA during the season the Rams met the Ramblers head-on in a nightmare of noise and excitement that left LA at the short end of a low scoring tilt, and with second place in the Catholic League.

cross country

At Loyola there is a tradition . . . in past years the cross-country teams have always been on top. This year has been no exception. The senior team led by co-captains Jim Murphy and Tom Perlitz, gave Coach Schurke both the Sun-Times and the City crowns.

The junior harriers paced by the fine showing of Bob Timm and Ed Neafsey placed second in the city tourney.

Front row: Joe Griffin, Mike Riordan.

golf

Trophies have long been almost proverbial with the Loyola golf team, and this year promises to be no exception to the long standing custom.

The senior team is ably led by co-captains Scala and Griffin, along with Egan and Nigrelli. Each senior team member has displayed championship form in past competition.

The junior team is bolstered by Reardon and Pitzer, who will spark the team in defending the championship crown which it won last year.

bowling

Our interschool keglers enjoyed a fine season in the North Section this year with both teams finishing third behind Weber and Gordon. This was our best showing since we joined the league only two years ago.

Sophomore Pat O'Brien and Junior Mike Sullivan were the anchor men on the squads with averages of 170 and 190 respectively.

The future looks extremely promising with only two of the twenty lettermen—Joe Romano and Daryl Adnerstrom graduating this year.

Sitting: Mike Kreusch, Ed Murray, Mike Sullivan, Bob Wisely.

track

Imbued with the spirit of last year's league championship, Loyola's cindermen began their season late in March with only one goal in mind—"City." Having shattered the Ignatius track rule of 19 consecutive years, the Ramblers decided to keep up the Jesuit tradition and put the name of Loyola down on the records for many years to come.

From gym sprints and calisthenics to the last day of practice on Sach's Field, they have fulfilled this ambition. With the help of seven returning lettermen and a fine crop of reserves, the ramblers labored to keep the crown in place for another year.

Reigning city-miler Jim Murphy left and often lapped his nearest rivals. Sprinter Joe Griffin along with hurdle specialist Harry McDonagh combined to anchor down an average of two wins apiece which resulted in high point honors for both. Leading the field events were City high jump champion Jack Siedler and broad jump-pole vault standout Paul Cathcart. Other senior point men were high jumper Jack Wambach, and hurdler Tom Cole. Bolstering the frontal attack were Juniors Poplar, Prior, Brennan, and Dunlavey—all of whom accounted for the points needed to insure victory.

baseball

From the first jumping jacks to the last crack of the bat this looked like the year for the usually mediocre LA baseball team. Bolstered by Plunkett, Meintzer, O'Loughlin, Elmore, and Murtha plus many fine rookies, Coach Lamont's nine were full of optimism. Experience and assurance were the key words, things that have been lacking before. The North Section, like always, was full of pitfalls, but the Ramblers brought home their share of the wins.

tennis

Twenty-five students met in room 132 on March 28. Minutes later each one left, confident that he was to be one of the dozen men selected to represent the Ramblers on the tennis court.

Those who successfully completed the tryouts were drilled and instructed by the coach, Fr. Dwyer, S. J., under the eye of the tennis moderator Fr. Crane, S.J. After this training period the team was set to capture another Catholic League Championship.

The team has always done well. Last year the Juniors compiled a league record of 6-1. With the entire squad on the courts again this year, it meant another trophy for Loyola.

JUNIOR TENNIS TEAM

escape

Maybe this part of the book needs some explanation. Maybe not. The pictures speak for themselves. They say that we all want to get away from the straight and narrow path of goal-directed behavior. They show us at the Homecoming, Bal Masque, retreat or just relaxing. They tell us that we want to escape and yet we'll show that a lasting escape is impossible. We can only slip out, briefly, from the maze. Someone, something, maybe ourselves, keep pulling us back.

Time and laughter and crepe streamers—
A brief escape—Homecoming.
The wee-small hours of Thanksgiving
Found us still, laughing, talking.
Till the party's over.
Till we must return.
Till we live again—
The Homecoming.

HOMEcoming

61

The Bal Masque, maybe . . .
Mardi Gras, the spirit of joyous
Pre-Lent, a charm all its own.

The Torch Club Dance, maybe . . .
A big night for the new boys--
Memento pins, and the old boys,
Who feel the end
Slowly coming.

The sock hops, maybe . . .
To them we tramped our
Friday-evening paths;
Meeting old friends,
Dancing,

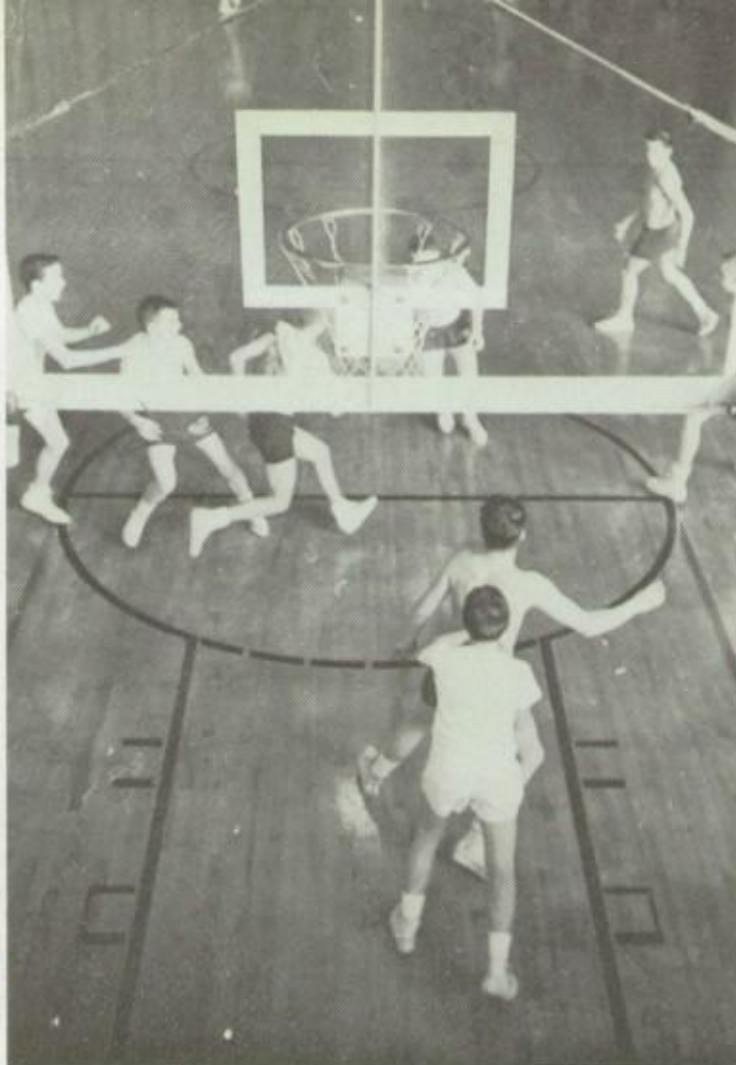

Making new friends,
And planning Saturday night.

These are but divergencies
And never really
Last.

Can we find a way
To break loose somewhere
Close or here or home?
We will always cherish the weekends,
The controlled freedom--the intramurals.
The fight, the win, the loss!
We fight through the game,
We concentrate without strain,
We finish and return
To our "little world."

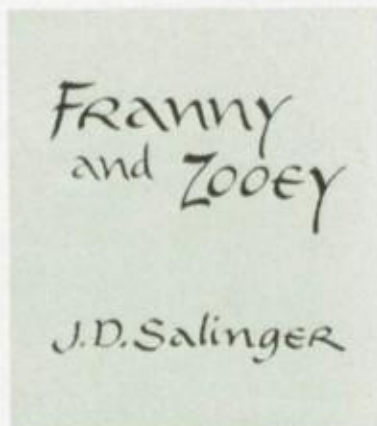

We pour forth to Villa Redeemer
Closed Retreat.
Some of us make open retreat:
Prayer-school.
Escape?
No, for God we know
And have always known
No one can escape to God.

They came from near and far and stalked Loyola's stage.
Talent they were.
The lights; the competition;
The microphone; parents,
Students, dates, and friends.
The Frank J. Hogan Memorial
Travelled to Oak Park,
But the memory of the First
Annual Loyola Academy
Invitational Talent Review
Will first and always Remain with us.

We listen to music, play chess, guitars, pianos, ping-pong, read books, and—over coffee, coke, tea, or heads, talk, talk, and talk.

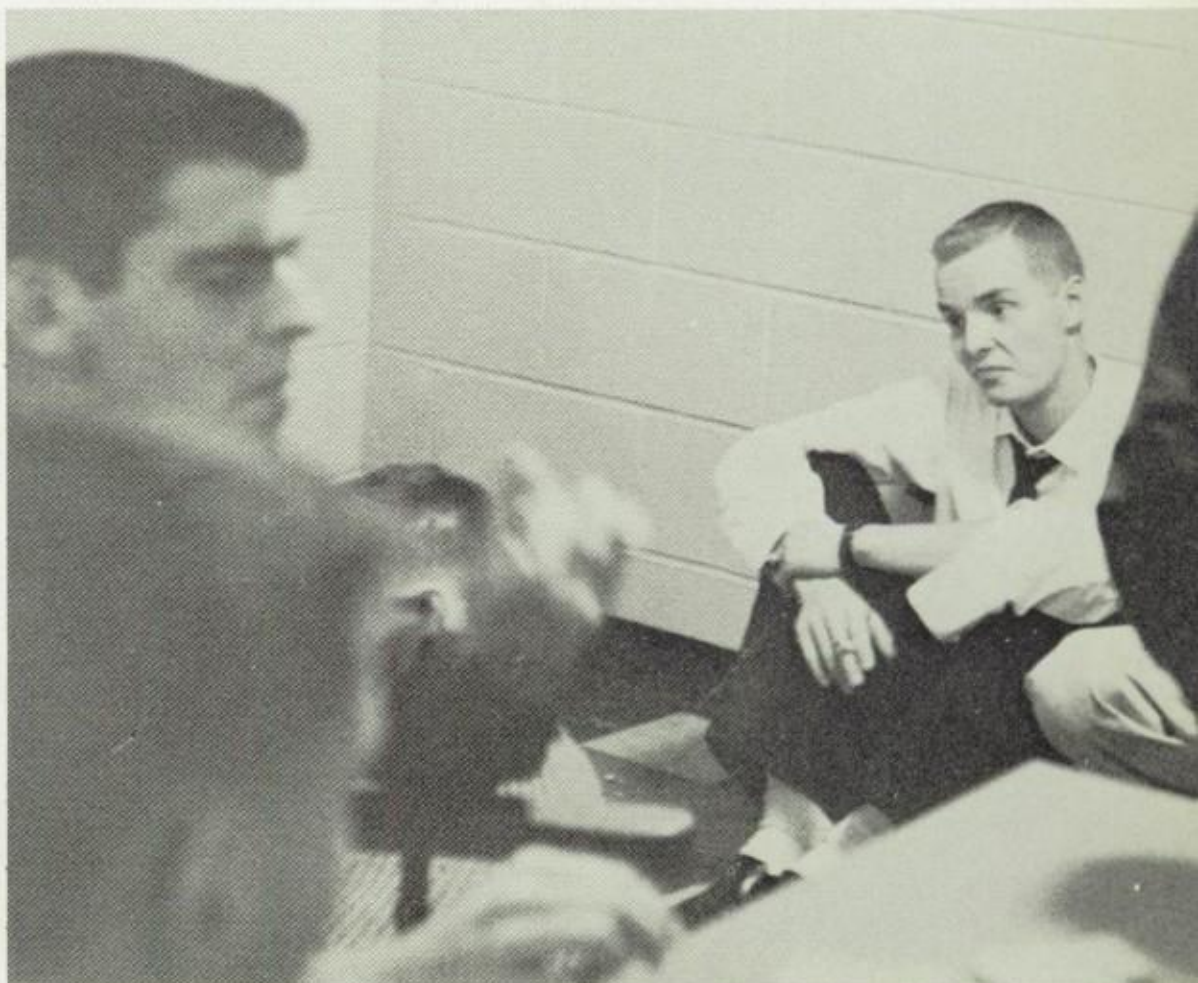

There is rock 'n roll and the twist—enjoyed by those who wish to look no higher. There is jazz, the hot and the cool—for those who know that . . . "Once you dig it, you never lose it." There is folk music. There are the classics.

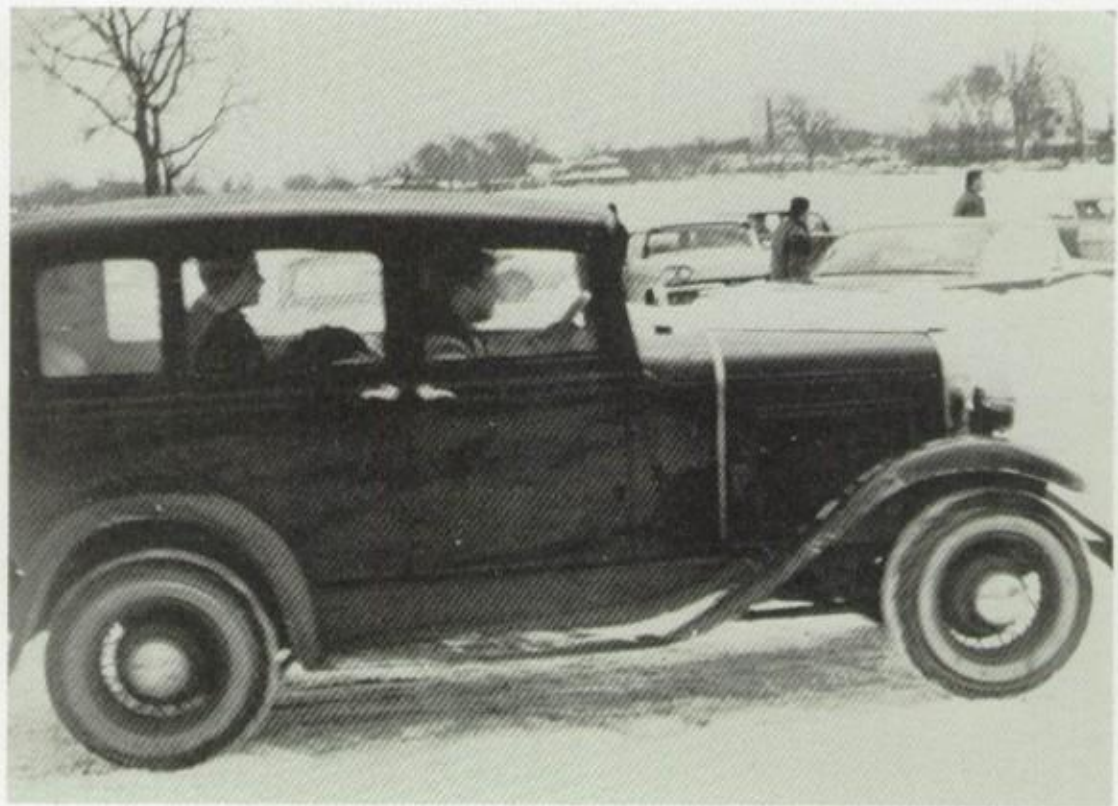

We read. A world of J. D. Salinger and "A Dissertation Upon Roast Pig." Our escape so different from Holden Caulfield's, our appreciation so different from Charles Lamb's.

We have our dates. Our girls somewhere between Renoir's and Toulouse-Lautrec's.

Here we are, working for marks. Rarely a thought of the things we really know. Rarely the desire to really know anything. In us the observer will see shapings of the scholars' ambitions, but little of his wisdom. There are too many things to hold our weak thoughts--too many seemingly insignificant things-- sports, activities, new thrills, the growing days. The insecurity of adolescence giving way to security of adulthood.

But is there ever real security?
Do we become too engrossed with the place we hold in this little world of high school?
Maybe we'll take it for what it should be.
Maybe we'll see the insignificance—
and yet the reality of this "little world"
and think:
"Now high school . . . and then there's college . . .
and then there's life."

No,
the end, the exit,
is not yet in sight,
although, through necessity, there must be one to
this book,
there is none to the school.
